

Assessing oral skills on-line is another important area that could contain a high degree of risk. It's important that this is done in a face-to-face, real time format to ensure reliability. Fortunately, modern LMS technology facilitates this in conference tools and the like. Similarly, formative online assessment needs to include automated feedback. These assessment items should provide learners with the practice and feedback to enable them to complete summative assessment required for course completion and progression.